FINANCE AND TRADE.

OUR BANKS were too quiet to have any news to tell yesterday. Exchange the Turso-Servian war has prevented on New York par buying, selling at 1 the expected rise of grain, which is now premium; on New Orleans i discount storing at the centers of trade in Europe buying, selling at par. Gold in New to await events. The Journal of Combuying, selling at par. Gold in New York steady all day at 1111, here 1101. The New York Post says: "Gold is lower, partly on account of the advance of United States bonds in London, they being [@] higher. British consols there are 1@1 to day. The London money market continues like our own extremely easy, and outside the Bank of England prime three months' bills are discounted at 1@11 per cent. per annum. Strange sa it may seem, the trade-dollar, which is worth in gold a little over 80 cents, brings only 99 cents in paper, while silver halves quarters and dimes, worth in gold, as above explained, less than 74 cents to the dollar, bring 101 in paper. The explanation is that small hange is scarce. The gold or bul-lion value of two silver halves. four quarters or ten dimes is $0.7384 The New York Herald, of Wednesday, reports: "Money continues to be loaned on call at 2 and 2 per cent. D's sounts are unchanged. The following were the rates of exchange on New York at the undermentioned cities to-day: Eavanrah, i premium; Charleston scarce, selling premium, buying premium; New Orleans, commercial h bank i; Cincinnati, par to 50c pramium; St. Louis, 75c premium, and Chicago, sales 60c premium." Nothing reported in this market in stocks or scrips.

IN THE PRODUCE MARKET there is much watching to see whether the Servian war will sand up the prices of our breadstuffs. The unwillingness of the great powers of Europe to be drawn into merce says: "If the area of the war is limited to Turkey and her provinces, as now seems likely, we need not look for any material disturbance in the money markets of Europe, or in the grain markets of the United States, during its continuance, or in consequence of it.1 The New York Bulletin, of Tuesday, says that breadstuffs there were very much depressed by free offerings; there was only a moderate export demand, and shippers had the advantage. Spring wheat fell off 1@3 cents, and, in some ir stauces, as much as 5 cents a Corn and oats were also bushel. Flour was decidedly heavy and difficult to market, in round lote, without yielding more than the admitted general decline of 10 to 15 cents a barrel." The Chicago Tribune, of Wednesday, reports only a moderate business there in leading articles of produce; weakness was the prominent feature, except some firmness in corn. Buyers of pork product held off in the hope of lower prices, while buyers of grain seemed to te afraid of condition. Telegrams from New York indicate great glarm in reference to the condition of the wheat now there and on the way thither, and the market roles heavy in consequence." The Chicago telegram has the following: Received 40,000 bu h-

Uninvited and incog, this professor of marine architecture visited the Governor Garland yesterday, and carefully inspected her from kelson to the tip of her jackstaff. Being unknown to anyone on board the boat, we had an excellent opportunity of viewing her in every department and estimating her merits without the aid of exaggerated laudations by interested parties. Our verdict is, that the Garland has been planned and constructed with more display of sound good sense than any pasket ever before built for Arganess river. Being s sternwheeler, of course she does not look "a thing of beauty and a joy forever," as is attained to by the magnificent sidewheel palaces which frequent western waters; but of her class she is the prottigst boat we have ever seen. She has been constructed with the special view to the cotton trade of Arkansas river, having storage capacity for the easy handling of eight hundred bales of the staple on two and a half feet of water; hesides, she has a spacious and elegantly furnished cabin, nanked with large, roomy staterooms, etc., which will contribute to her popularity as a passen-ger packet. The colored population have not been forgotten, for her texas affords comportable accommodations for a large company of people, who will appreciate this department of the Garland's capacity. On each side of the texas are ranged siceping apartments ample for the demands of this class of the traveling public. The "servants' recess," just aft the is lies' cabin, has also been made a special feature that will be admired and appreciated by lady travalars who delight to have their servants Captain James Bowlin, tive, and a shade higher; $19 60@19 621. | iand could be nothing else but perfectly adapted to the demands of the higher; 10.02 c. Powers, her mate, whose experience of ocean steamers was brought into requisition in perfecting his department of the Governor Garland for the most successful combat with the vicissitudes of Arkansas river navigation in low-water seasons. Her provisions against fire are also of the most perfect and complete character, fire-plugs being arranged at every convenient part of the boat, from the lower deck to the hurricane roof, so that the boat can be flooded almost in an instant after the alarm is given.

The Governor Garland, begun at Pittsburg, was completed at Cincinnati, and brought to this port by Captain Bowlin and a crew employed specially for the purpose. As soon as she arrived here, however, Captain El Nowland took command of her, and place I on her the following crew: Walker Outlaw and Joe Boyd, clerks; Captain E B. Smith and Mat Downs, pliots; Henry Powers, William Charles of the command of th mate; William Short and Charles Date, engineers; James Duncan, carpenter; Elisha Cannon, liquid comforter; and John Wesley Ware, steward. All of these people have been with Captain Nowland since the year one, and are well known all along the line between this port and the head-waters of Arkansas river. Particularly is this the case with "Wes." Ware, the steward, whose Falstaffian proportions and immense old Virginia feasts have made him and his department the special wonder among Atkansas riveriaus. Of Captain Nowland, her commander, it is hardly necessary for us to speak, for he is so well known in the Arkaneas trade that his name has become as familiar as household words. Captain Nowland's experience as a river man may be estimated from the fact that he has commanded in Atkanses river alone a number of steamers, and can boast as successful a career as any stesmboatman of the fresh-water persurtion. We can now recall the names of the Fort Gibson, Legal Tender, Ella, and City of Augusta, of the steamers he has pulled the big bell-rope on, and now he got 3 out on the pretty Governor Garland, which experienced marines pro-nounce the best adapted and most ele-

Vicksburg Herald, Thursday: "From all appearances the cotton boats have a good season in prospect. The cotton crop all along the valley is reported to be very fine, and the acreage planted equally as large as any previous season. If there should no unlooked for blight fall upon the crop the boats will have pretty much all the freight they can handle during the season, and if the planters can only get a reasonable price for the staple, business will be good and Parties who came in on the Fort Smith train report the river to be rising all the way down, and a private letter from Fort Smith states that the water has commenced to make a grand spread over the lowlands in that vicinity, much to the consternation of the farmers. We learn that along the river in that portion of Pulaski county above this city, about one-third of the corn and one-eighth of the cotton planted has been destroyed by the overflow. The bank on the Argenta side has made several bad 'caves' during the past day of two, much to the fright and annoyance of people occupying river-front lots So far the part of only one house has been carried away by the flood, that being a room belonging to Mr. Bramanti.
